BET TYPES

STRAIGHT BET

A wager on one individual single event determined by a point spread, money line or total

POINT SPREAD

Represents the required margin of points by which a team must win or lose by less than. The favorite is indicated by a minus sign along with the point spread (e.g. Minnesota -7). The opposite applies to the underdog where they are indicated by a plus sign along with the point spread (Chicago +7). Odds are bet 11 to win 10 (-110) unless stated otherwise. In the above example, if Minnesota wins by more than 7 points or if Chicago loses by less than 7 points or wins outright, that respective team will "cover the spread". If Minnesota wins by 7 exactly, the bet is a "push" and bets on both teams are refunded

MONEY LINE

The odds of a team winning the game outright without the use of the point spread. The money line is represented by numbers such as -150 for the favorite and +140 for the underdog. Both are in reference to $100, where for the favorite, a $150 bet wins $100 (total payout of $250) and the underdog, a $100 bet wins $140 (total payout of $240)

TOTAL (OVER/UNDER)

To wager the combined total final score from both teams of a game will be more than (over) or less than (under) a specified amount. This is an independent wager and is not associated with a point spread. Overtime is counted within the betting total unless otherwise indicated

PARLAY

Combining two or more bets (also called legs) on one ticket. To win a parlay, all wagers must be won, and the entire bet is lost if one leg loses. However, if one leg pushes, it is simply removed from the Parlay and a 3 leg parlay will become a 2 leg parlay

TEASERS

A type of football or basketball wager that gives the ability to adjust the point spread up or down a specified number of points in the player's favor on more than one game in exchange for a lower payout

FUTURES

A wager placed far in advance of an event taking place such as what team will win the championship. Odds on these events may, or may not, be displayed on the betting board, but may be available on the sheet rack

PROPOSITIONS

'Prop' bets focused on specific occurrences within a given game. An example may be "Will there be a safety throughout the game?" or "Who will score first?"

BETTING TERMS

ACTION

Any wager or bet

BAD BEAT

A tough loss on a bet that appeared to be won but was lost at the end from an unexpected event

BUYING POINTS

Moving the point spread in player's favor for an additional price

CHALK

The favorite team or athlete

COVER

A favorite winning by enough to beat the point spread or an underdog losing by less than the point spread

DEAD HEAT

Where two or more selections are joint winners in an event. If a dead heat between two selections is declared on any event, half the bet is applied to the selection at full odds and the other half is lost. If more than two dead heats are declared, the bet is proportioned accordingly per the Dead Heat rule

DOG

The team or athlete perceived to be the least likely to win, also known as the Underdog

FAVORITE

The team or athlete favored to win

GRAND SALAMI

A bet on the cumulative total for all scores of every team, such as total runs in baseball, in every game on the same day within a particular league

LINE

Current odds or point spread on a game

LISTED PITCHERS

A baseball wager that is based on both pitchers scheduled to start a game. Should either pitcher listed on a bet not start the game, wager is deemed no action and money will be refunded

LISTED PITCHER VERSUS OPPOSING TEAM

A baseball wager that is based on one listed pitcher from either team scheduled to start a game. In the event that the specified listed pitcher does not start, there is no wager and money will be refunded. The wager may be subject to an odds adjustment should there be a change in the other specified pitcher (from that originally listed). It can be specified as either a listed pitcher from the team you wish to wager upon or you may wager on a team against the opposing team's listed pitcher

LONGSHOT

The team or athlete that is considered to be very unlikely to win

MONEY LINE

The odds of a team winning the game outright without the use of the point spread

NO ACTION

A wager that is canceled/void and original bet is refunded

OVER

A wager that the combined total final score from both teams of a game will be more than a specified amount. Overtime is counted within the betting total unless otherwise stated

PICK OR PICK EM'

A game in which there is neither a favorite nor an underdog. The point spread will be set as 0 or even

POINT SPREAD
